Yet for the believer, change by itself is not a threat; instead, it is a unique opportunity for improvement and correction existing errors.

Islam teaches us that knowledge is a trust which, once learned, should be shared and its innovative application a responsibility. The unique tools of today's world, when guided by faith, will ultimately become instruments of societal service, justice, and compassion.

Our graduates step into a future where their values must anchor their creativity, and where their understanding of the Quran and Sunnah should illuminate their professional decisions.

I pray that each and every one of you uses your acquired skills and your faith to guide the next generation towards a more ethical, and spiritually conscious use of technology. May Allah bless your journey, protect your intentions, and make you leaders who contribute positively to humanity.

cial intelligence is becoming woven into every aspect of life. In such a landscape, your greatest strength is not only your academic achievement but your ability to combine knowledge with faith.

Innovation becomes meaningful only when it upholds dignity, fairness, and compassion — values deeply rooted in Islam. As you begin your professional journey, you carry with you the responsibility of shaping how technology serves humanity, especially the next generation.

Let your decisions be guided by taqwa, your curiosity shaped by wisdom, and your skills directed towards benefit. May Allah grant you success in this world and the next, and may your contributions bring light to a world that urgently needs principled leadership.

On behalf of the entire IOU community - our Governing Council, Global Senior Management Committee, Faculty, Administrators, Trustees, Students, and Alumni, I offer you best wishes as you go forth.

Prof. Makie Taal
Vice Chancellor!
